

MEXICAN-AMERICAN STUDIES

Associate of Arts

The Mexican-American Studies Associate of Arts degree provides students with an interdisciplinary education that can transition to any Liberal Arts or Humanities baccalaureate degree program at a four-year institution. The interdisciplinary curriculum provides students with the general academic background necessary for success at any four-year institution while providing them with awareness of Mexican-American history, culture, political agency and the formation of the Mexican-American identity.

The Mexican-American Studies degree is especially useful for students planning to work in areas with large Hispanic populations, as it will provide them with a better understanding of the community where they work. Employers value them as bilingual and culturally aware professionals. Earning an Associate of Arts in Mexican-American Studies prepares students for multiple career paths in the public and private sectors, including social service, urban planning, non-profits, healthcare, education and business operations.

The Mexican-American Studies program not only provides students with cultural awareness, but also an advantage in both a four-year program and the workforce by honing critical thinking, oral, written and research skills.
